Shetland Sister Form

Dear advertiser.

Following on from last year's very successful launch of the full Shetland Visitor magazine "flip" version online (over 250,000 page views), and using end-user feedback and research, further evolution of the magazine is now taking place to ensure we keep pace with the ever-changing tourism market and how we serve it. We intend to make the magazine even more user-friendly by producing as an A5 size, perfect bound publication, with the online version offering even more opportunities for reaching customers (see offers overleaf).

The Shetland Visitor, published by The Shetland Times Ltd for 23 years, has developed over that time to become the default marketing tool for reaching summer visitors, as well as the many locals who use it throughout the year. It is also the default publication for use by

Promote Shetland through trade fair and website requests meaning circulation has increased, giving you an unbeatable advertising opportunity. Shetland Visitor is, simply, the best outlet for you to reach the crucial tourist and local

Published in autumn, the magazine is available and current to all visitors and potential visitors, including those who travel during off-peak times and to events such as the music festivals and Up-Helly-A' celebrations.

So not only does Shetland Visitor catch visitors while they are here (not to mention the local population), it also reaches a much broader audience previsit, helping them to plan their Shetland experience before arriving.

As always, the free distribution magazine is printed in full colour throughout on gloss art paper and all advertisers receive free copies for their customers.

Four very competitively priced advertisement sizes are now available. Please see inside for details of these, as well as some "online extras" we can now provide.

We will give you a call soon to discuss your requirements but in the meantime, if you wish to advertise, please complete the advertisement order form (see back) and return to us by 14th September 2012.

For any further information, or if you have any queries, please contact us.

Yours faithfully

Treat yourself, or someone special, to a gift from J. G. Rae Ltd, at 92 Commercial Street (01595 693686). Silver and gold jewellery made locally using traditional, Nordic and wildlife designs, along with a range based on the St Ninian's Isle treasure, allow you to take home a piece of Shetland's history. The workshop is at Shetland Jewellery in Weisdale where visitors are welcome

Austin Taylor has been carrying a camera since boyhood but still strives for that one unique image and hopes his once-in-a-lifetime will come sometime. He loves creating but also gets carried away just snapping. Occasionally he manages to combine the two and please himself with the result, the rest of the time he just keeps trying.

Shetland Arts Development Agency manages and co-ordinates a varied programme of arts activities throughout Shetland, including those at the Garrison Theatre and the Bonhoog Gallery. The historic Weisdale Mill, built in 1855, houses the Bonhoga Gallery, where exhibitions of local, national and international art and craft are on show throughout the year. The gallery shop sells a range of crafts and design-led books and gifts, while the Mill Café in the conservatory overlooks Kergord Burn and serves delicious food with a local flavour. The Mill is open 10.30am to 4.30pm from Tuesday to Saturday, and from noon to 4.30pm on Sunday. For further information telephone 01595 745750. The Bonhoga Gallery also arranges touring exhibitions of work in Sumburgh airport terminal, the rural leisure centres and cafes around the isles, while independent displays are often on show at various public buildings including the Gilbert Bain Hospital and Islesburgh Community Centre

A GALLERY OF ISLAND ART, CRAFT & KNITWEAR

SHETLAND can boast a wealth of talented knitters, craft makers, artists and photographers who are engaged in producing various quality items for both the local and tourist markets. Work is available direct from the makers or from local shops, websites, craft fairs, markets and gallery outlets. Shetland's biggest craft fair is usually held nearer the end of the year in the Clickimin Centre in Lerwick and is a great 'Christmas shopping' outing. You could even find the ideal 'take home giff' at the Sunday teas which are held in various village halls throughout the summer and often feature craft stalls or car boot sales.

The Shetland Arts & Crafts Association launched Shetland's Craft Trail in 2011. Many local artists and craft makers have got together to make it easy to find studios 2 Shetland Visitor 2013 a leaflet from the Visit Shetland office, NorthLink Ferries, the airport, or from any participating outlet. Alternatively, keep a look out for the distinctive signs you'll find all over Shetland. A huge variety of craftspeople will welcome you to their premises, show you how they work, maybe even let you have a go; and, of course, give you the opportunity to buy handmade craft work straight from the maker. As this is Shetland, naturally there are a number of knitwear producers, working with innovative as well as traditional Fair Isle designs. Other crafts, not quite so obviously 'Shetland', include furniture design and manufacture leather work, felt making – it's a long list. Though the Association call it a 'trail', there is no set path to travel. Wherever your travels take you, the Craft Trail will lead to many surprises, but only two certainties quality crafts and a warm welcome.

And there are few things warmer than real Shetland wool. Native wool is protected under a European Union scheme – the first time in the UK that a non food or drink product has gained Protected Designation of Origin (PDO) accreditation – which means sellers must provide proof of provenance and breed. The 'Native Shetland Wool' designation came into force in November 2011, and gives a guarantee to customers that they are buying the genuine, premium product from Shetland. The knitwear produced using the wool is famous worldwide, from the fine lace shawls that can be pulled through a wedding ring, to the intricate Fair Isle patterned garments that are knitted throughout the isles. 'Fair Isle', in many forms, is in vogue with all ages but for the 'real thing' visit the islands' talented producers to see the range of authentic garments and gifts on offer. 'You'll also find makers and designers who use their own creativity and methods to produce more contemporary work to complement the range of fraditional items.

The Shetland Textile Working Museum, housed in the Bod of Gremista in Lerwick, is an informative and entertaining resource for anyone interested in the wealth of textile history and culture that Shetland has to offer

The textile collection is cared for by the Shetland Guild of Spinners, Weavers, Dyers and Knitters and contains nearly 500 items that embrace all sections of the islands' rich textile heritage.

The 2012 exhibition will be open Tuesdays

The 2012 exhibition will be open Tuesdays to Saturdays between May and September with demonstrations of handspinning and knitting on Wednesday and Saturdays.
